How to Hack the Stock Market

Introduction

Anyone can make money on the stock market; it's just a matter of finding the correct way to trade right from the start. You see, millions of traders all over the world have given up trading simply because they started with the wrong program, lost a load of money & swore they'd never touch another stock again.

This is the wrong way to go about trading; you should never blame the game but only blame yourself for losses. Once you can blame yourself rather than the system then this is half the battle over. Now all that is left is to find a system that will work for you, which will consistently make you money no matter what the market is doing.

We strongly believe that every trader needs a system which they stick to no matter what the market is doing. The vast majority of novice traders will have several angles going on at the same time, they'll trade commodities, futures, penny stocks, options etc. but they'll never get a real grasp on one of these areas.

Smart traders, the ones who actually make money at this game have their own strategies which they keep hidden from the public eye. They'll never reveal how they do it but will instead show you a lot of complicated data which anyone would have problems understanding.

Here we dispel the myth & show you one way which will consistently make you money. We reveal a system which many are using today & are making a lot of money doing so. This method is really simple to use, it involves minimum risk & is free.

The system we are talking about is the “Golden Cross” which we’ll be running from ClearStation. ClearStation is a website known to many but only put to work by the smart traders who know the true value of its information. If you use ClearStation to trade for a couple of weeks & write everything down, you’ll then have a very good idea of what works & what doesn’t work. Nearly all traders who start trading with ClearStation don’t make notes! It’s really important that you write down each trade into a spreadsheet & keep track of them. This is the only way to see what’s working so make sure you do likewise!

Golden Cross

For long term trading of a few weeks or a month or more we'll use the golden cross strategy. When using this strategy we'll also be using ClearStation charts. ClearStation uses a 50-day exponential moving average (EMA) in purple & a 13-day EMA in green.

Here's how we find stocks that are about to make that move. Launch ClearStation from <http://www.clearstation.com> . On the main page you'll notice two lists, one is called the A list & the other the Z list. We're only concerned about the A List here. In the A list you'll see three or four stocks that are "Trending Up", these are the stocks we want. Make sure you have the latest list for that day.

Click each stock symbol to see their chart. If the Green Line is just about to cross the purple line or has just crossed the purple line then this is what is known as the golden cross. What this means is that if this stock has good volume & the markets are in positive territory then this stock should start to rise soon.

If we just bought these stocks from the A list we'd only have around a 60% success rate. This is no good for us; we need to figure out how we can gain on the other 40%. How do we do this? We now enter the stocks we found on Clearstation.com that are trending up into Bigcharts.com & select a 1 Month Moving Average (MA) & a Daily Frequency.

We enable all the indicators. We only select stock where the price has just hit the lower Bollinger Band & is starting to rise again or where the price has dropped from the top Bollinger Band & hit the center SMA line & is rising again or where the price is level between the top Bollinger Band & Center SMA line.

We can further refine our research on our selected stock by using a 10 Day MA chart. By using a 10 Day MA chart we can get a more detailed view & can tell instantly if our stock is trending up within a two week period. If the stock is trending up, we can then do an even deeper analysis by selecting a 1 Day MA. By selecting a 1 Day MA we can be sure to enter our trade at the best position on that day.

(10 Day Chart)

Even if your A list stock picks don't seem to be moving up in either the 1 Month MA chart or the 1 Day MA chart you should keep a list of them & keep checking them every day. It's better if you just enter them all into an XL spread sheet with their current price, volume & whether the market is up or down when you made your selection. In this way, you can build a powerful database on past trades & after a while you'll learn to pick only trades that are moving up.

We now have all the stocks that are trending up & have double checked them on Bigcharts.com. We now need to be extra sure that our stock picks will go up in price, to do this we check whether the markets are trending up or down. We can use the NASDAQ to measure this. Just type in the Ticker Symbol QQQ into Bigcharts.com & select a 10 Day (MA) with an Hourly Frequency. If the QQQ price line is trending up, i.e. it's rising up from the lower Bollinger Band or just after dropping down to the center SMA line from the top Bollinger Band & is rising again, then this is a good indication that the markets are trending up & most stocks should follow the uptrend.

Once we've selected which stocks we want to trade we should check for any news on Market Pulse (<http://bigcharts.marketwatch.com/>) that may interfere with them. We should also check when their earnings are due as these could interfere with our investment. Check your stock once a day on Bigcharts.com. Use both a 10 Day MA & a 1 Day MA to catch any short or long term changes in the stock price & don't forget to enter a stop loss when you decide to make that trade.

You may also notice the "Over Sold" links on the A List. These refer to stocks that have too many shares out & should start a buying frenzy soon. If you click on these you'll see at the bottom of the chart the stochastic indicator. Notice how most of the time it's just touching the 20 line, this is a good indicator that it's about to make a move upwards soon.

Always be sure there's good volume & the markets are in positive territory before you make a trade & don't forget to enter your stop loss.

Tip: Instead of typing in each stock ticker individually into Clearstation.com every time, you can open a portfolio of all your stock symbols & view these in bulk, it's a lot easier.

How to select Golden Cross Shares Recap!

- 1: Launch ClearStation at <http://www.clearstation.com>
- 2: Select stocks from the A List that are "Trending Up" i.e. the Green Line is just about to cross the purple line or has just crossed the purple line.

3: Check to see if the green line has just crossed the purple line on each of these stocks.

4: If the green line has crossed the purple line then we have a Golden cross.

5: Once we have a golden Cross, check that it has good overall volume.

6: Do a quick check of the stochastic indicator & other indicators at the end of the chart.

7: Launch Bigcharts.com & select Time as a 1 Month MA with a Daily frequency. Enter your stock symbol & make sure that the stock price has hit the lower Bollinger band & is moving back up, if it's trending up then this could be a good candidate to trade.

8: To further refine your search use both a 10 Day MA Chart & then a 1 Day MA chart on your selected stock.

9: Check for any news that might interfere with your selected stock. Type its ticker symbol into Market Pulse at <http://bigcharts.marketwatch.com/>

10: Check to see when your selected stocks earnings are due. <http://biz.yahoo.com/research/earnca/today.html> .You don't want earnings to interfere with your selection.

11: Make sure the markets are in positive territory. Enter the QQQ symbol with a 10 Day MA to see if markets are trending up.

12: Keep checking your stock every day.
